Brand Guidelines

BELRON®

Welcome

Our guidelines are designed to help you apply the visual identity effectively and consistently across all collateral.

As well as our logo, we use other elements to create our identity, such as colour, fonts, icons and white space. There is flexibility to be creative within the choice of elements and still create a recognisable Belron® family suite of collateral.

Logo

Our striking and recognisable logo is the most important device used to represent our brand.

The full colour logo which features the registered trademark ident should always be used.* It's important to observe the exclusion area around the logo.

The logo should always be used in its entirety and should never be split apart to create a separate graphic device. It must always be reproduced in opaque solid form, and never made transparent in any way.

Printed materials – Logo

Minimum size

The Belron® logo should never be used under 30mm wide when printed, and 90px when shown online.

*The only exception to this is on our social media channels (see page 5).

Logo usage

To preserve the integrity of our brand, the Belron® logo should always have a minimum exclusion area which is kept free of any other information.

The 'B' from the logo should be used as the measurement to determine this exclusion area.

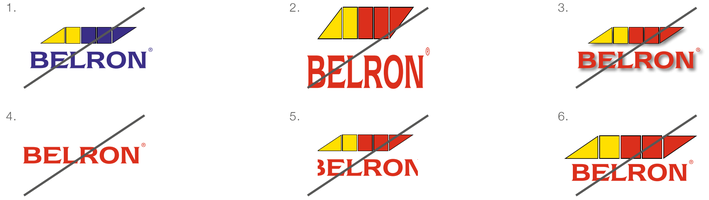
Logo rules

1. Don't change the colours.
2. Don't stretch or compress.
3. Don't add a drop shadow.
4. Don't remove the graphic devices.
5. Don't crop the logo.
6. Don't resize elements of the logo.



Colour

The lead colour palette consists of the Belron® yellow, grey and red. These are our dominant colours that are used in combinations across all our communications.

It's also important to embrace white space across all communications, this creates a contemporary look and ensures a balance of colours.

Tints of the Belron® colour palette can be used to add depth to artwork when the use of another Belron® colour does not work.

The Belron® purple and teal are predominantly used for internal communications however small percentages of the colours can be used across external communications, for example as accent colours, highlights and within text.

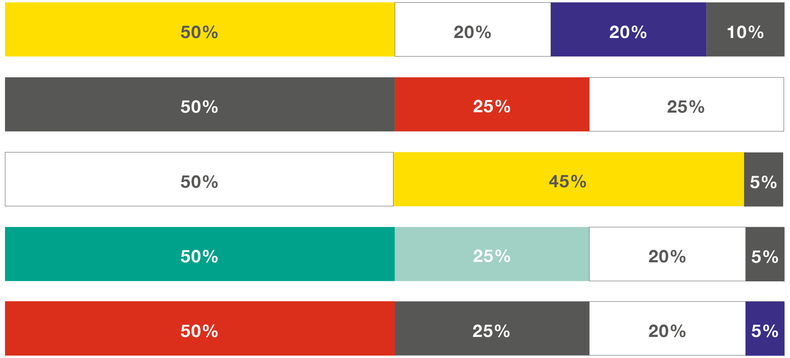
Colour Usage

When using our colours, a balance must be created to maintain the look and feel of our brand. When there is a higher percentage use of one of the leading colours, please compliment this by only using a small percentage of another. This is to ensure that any communications don't become too busy in appearance.

Here are just a few examples of how to use the Belron® colour palette.

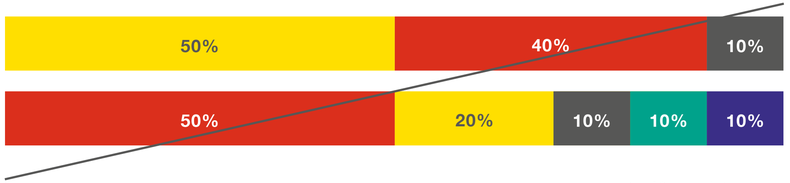
Do's



Don'ts

A minimal approach is required so that not all colours are used at once and avoid clashing combinations.

Alongside are a few examples of how not to use the Belron® colour palette.....



Typography – Print

Clear communication is an essential part of the Belron® brand. Used consistently, typography plays a significant role in reinforcing the brand.

We use Helvetica Neue as our primary typeface, a geometric sans serif font that comes in a number of weights. Helvetica Neue is at the heart of our visual style and synonymous with our brand.

To ensure a strong contrast when creating headlines, subheaders and copy, use a variety of font weights.

Helvetica Neue should be used for all print materials, events, and copy set in online graphics when possible. In cases where this font is not available, please use Arial.

Typography – Digital

We use Arial for all Word documents and digital applications, e.g. emails, PowerPoint and our website.

Belron® angle

The Belron® angle has been introduced to support the brand and give our communications a vibrant and contemporary feel.

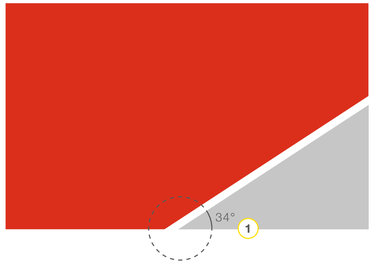
Blocks of colour, images or textures, can be sliced to remove a corner at an angle of 34°. This reflects the same angle as the corners from the Belron® logo.

Belron® angle

When using the Belron® logo and the Belron® angle together, a few rules need to be followed:

1. Always make sure the Belron® angle is set to 34°.
2. The Belron® logo's preferred position is at the bottom right hand corner of the page. Alternatively, the top left hand corner is acceptable for digital communications.
3. The Belron® angle alternatively can be used on the top right or bottom left of block colour, but only one at a time.

Do's

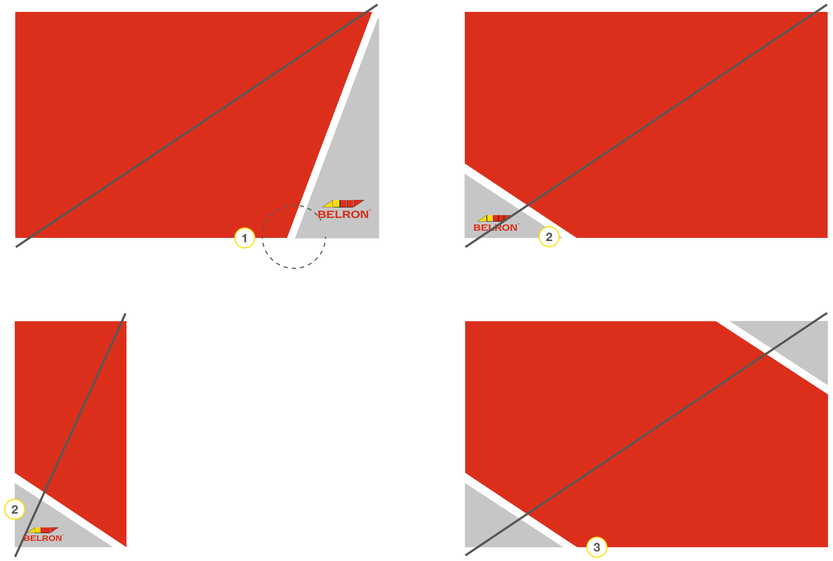


Belron® angle

When using the Belron® logo and the Belron® angle together, a few rules need to be followed:

1. Do not change the angle, it must always remain at 34°.
2. Do not use the Belron® logo, either bottom left or top right positioning, as it jars with the Belron® angle.
3. Do not use the Belron® angle on more than one corner.

Don’ts



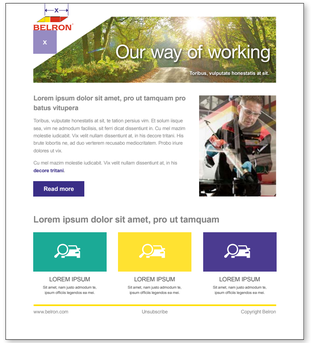
Belron® border

The Belron® logo size determines the size of the Belron® border. The width of the Belron® device (x) becomes the proportional space for the border on all of that collateral.

This formula is also used as a spacer between the Belron® logo and the positioning of the Belron® angle.

When using the Belron® logo and Belron® border together, the following applies. The Belron® logo sits on the base line and right hand edge of where the crop occurs, to visually square off that corner.

Logo and angle collaboration



Belron® stripe

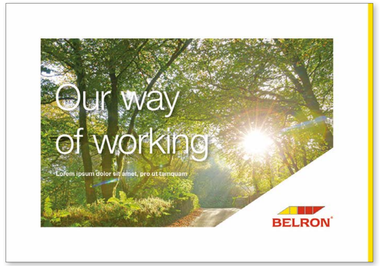
A Belron® stripe device has been implemented to help anchor the logo when being used in conjunction with the Belron® angle.

The stripe must only ever be used on the outside edge of the page when a document is created with facing pages (spreads).

The preferred location on landscape items is the right hand side and on portrait items it's at the bottom. This helps to draw the eye up into the communication.

Belron® Stripe size guide

When using the Belron® Stripe please stick to the size guide below. The guide shows the weight of the Stripe for each document size.
A0 – 7mm
A1 – 6mm
A2 – 5mm
A3 – 4mm
A4 – 3mm
A5 – 3mm
A6 – 3mm



Belron® stripe

When working on campaigns, we can change the colour the Belron® stripe to another of the Belron® primary colours.

This will stay consistent throughout that particular campaign. We cannot use multiple colour stripes throughout any one campaign and we never create a rainbow effect with them.

Imagery

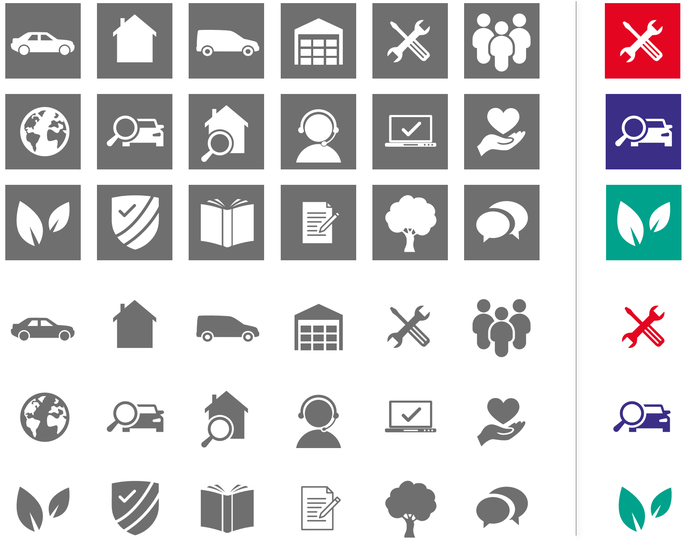
Icon style

The purpose of our icons is to communicate a clear message. The style should be 2D and make use of the full colour palette. They should remain simple in structure, staying clear of over-complicated or detailed drawings, or those that contain over-shading.

Use them to support your content and to shape the brand's identity. All Belron® communication is based on clarity. This principle also applies to infographics, use only as many details as necessary and always as few as possible.

There is flexibility in how the icons are used. They can be either contained within a box, used as a solid colour on white, or white out of a background image. The icons must be legible at all times, do not use clashing colour combinations which makes them hard to recognise.

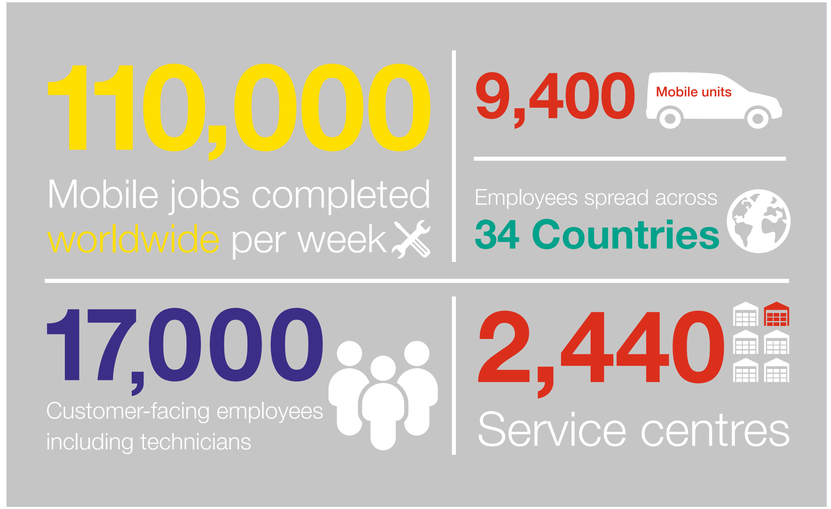
Do not link colours to sections, for example Belron® teal to environmental. All icons can be used in all Belron® colours, as long as they work within the design.



Imagery

Infographics

The icons can be used to communicate complex information in striking, digestible chunks to engage the audience.



Textures

Textures can be used across collateral to create depth. They represent the level of detail Belron® uses to approach jobs on a daily basis, from across all areas of the business.

Grid system

(FOR AGENCY USE)

For Belron® brochures and reports, we have adopted a compact grid system that can be flexible for any design requirement. For landscape pages we use an 8 column grid and for portrait we use a 6 column grid. Both have a 19mm margin and 4mm gutter. The grid can be used in any combination of columns.

Margins	19mm
Gutter	4mm

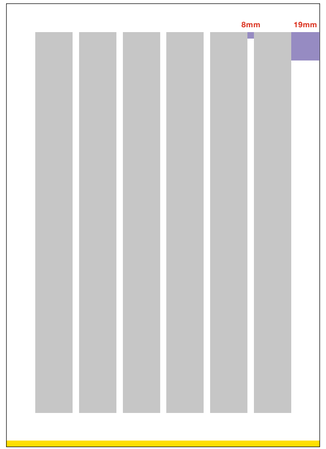
Portrait – 6 column grid



Landscape – 8 column grid

Brand in action

The Belron® border frames the Belron® angle, which holds either colour or bright, fresh photography. The Belron® stripe anchors the logo, which prevents the appearance of floating and makes it stand out from surrounding collateral.

Inside spreads

The Belron® angles connect individual pages to make them feel like a cohesive piece, as well as helping to create visually stimulating type layouts. Our simple, clear, open font adds to the feeling of space, which in turn gives more emphasis to the message being communicated.

Highlighting simple information using our icon style, ensures key facts become prominent.

Inside spreads

A combination of strong messages, typography and colour ensure a dynamic confident brand.

Images, colour blocks and textures can be used to fill a page as well as being used within the Belron® angle. This creates visual interests and flexibility within collateral.
